Mr. Ken Komazawa

Vice President, IT Strategy Office,
Technology Planning Department,
Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Corporation (NTT)

【TOGAF® 9 Certified】

Ken Komazawa started his career at NTT Corporation in 1997. He was transferred to NTT Comware, leading system integration company of the NTT Group, where he served as a security engineer. Ken led major development, construction, and consultant of the security systems for NTT subsidiaries. He now leads the IT Strategy Office at NTT Headquarter.

Ken has been leading the IT governance for the NTT Group since 2010, from formulating NTT Group's IT strategic planning to application portfolio management, carrying out systematic integration and IT cost optimization.

After transferring to NTT in 2014, he contributed to the visualization of NTT Group's business information, including both domestic and overseas subsidiaries, where he received the Data Management Award from Japan Data Management Consortium (JDMC) in 2018.

Since 2018, Ken is responsible for driving internal digital transformation, one of the pillars included in NTT's medium-term strategy. He leads the enterprise architecture and data governance platform to standardize back-office operations where he succeeded in executing one of the world's largest big bang ERP implementations.
